The VJJA 38th Fall Juvenile Justice Institute, “Moving Forward: Serving Virginia’s Youth and Families With Pride,” was held on November 5-6, 2014, at the Newport News Marriott City Center, in Newport News, Virginia. The event was co-organized by the Virginia Department of Criminal Justice Services. Approximately 282 participants attended the two-day event. The group assembled represented court services, the judiciary, secure detention, detention alternatives, corrections, mental health, education, and more. Additionally 32 public and private agencies and organizations exhibited, including Bronze Level Sponsor, the Virginia Association of Community-Based Providers (http://www.vacbp.org/).

The conference was opened by VJJA President Stephanie Garrison, VJJA Institute Planning Chair Ashaki McNeil, DJJ Director Andy Block and DCJS Director Fran Ecker. Plenary session speakers included Dr. Allison Sampson Jackson, Helivi Holland, Dr. Erik Nielson, University of Richmond, and Dr. Ryan Shanahan, the Vera Institute. Plenary and workshop topics included, “Communication: Talking Out the Side of Your Neck”, “Working Collaboratively With Families”, “Human Trafficking: The Local Context of a Global Issue”, “VA’s 2nd Chances Grant”, “Social Media Secrets: What Criminals Don’t Want You To Know”, “How to Engage Families”, “Judicial Panel: Navigating the Issues of Juvenile and Domestic Relations”, “Saving Heros: Are You Putting the Oxygen Mask on Yourself First?”, “Addressing Mental Health and Substance Abuse in the Community”, “Understanding What PREA Means to You”, “Bridging the Gap: Connecting Commitment with Community”, “Permanency Outcomes for Youth in Foster Care”, and “Putting Rap Music on Trial”.

In addition to formal learning opportunities, companion events were designed to recognize excellence, foster networking, and stimulate peer-to-peer learning. Events included the annual President’s Reception and the annual dance social.

Special guests in attendance included four retired Lifetime Members, David James, Tom Currier, Diane Shelton and John Newell, and seven former Presidents, David James, Ron Belay, Tom Currier, Lewis Wright, Bob Bermingham, Beth Stinnett and Susan Farmer.

The 39th Fall Institute is slated for November 4 and 6, 2015. Learn more as details become available by visiting: http://www.vjja.net/fall-institute.html
FROM THE PRESIDENT’S DESK

November 2014

Dear Members:

Our administration continues to make progress in fulfilling the vision and mission of our organization. The VJJA Board of Directors convened a board meeting on November 4, 2014. The Board of Directors are actively working to move our organization forward. I am pleased to give you an update on the goals outlined for my administration:

Stated Goal: Increase Membership – FOCUS on increasing membership recruitment in each District to restore VJJA’s membership to 1000 +.

Progress: As of September 30, 2014 (pre-conference), we had 348 members; Memberships By District: Blue Ridge-35, Capital-109, Northern-38, Southwest-22, Tidewater-117, Valley-27. Our fiscal membership year started July 1, 2014. Please renew at least one new member. The Marketing & Public Relations Team has held a number of membership recruitment events, including a recruitment table at Youth Connections Open House.

Stated Goal: Enhance Communication – We will generate constant communication to members and our community partners via e-mail, social media and the VJJA website.

Progress: Written Publication: The Advocate has been reinstated as a quarterly publication - February, April, June, and November issues. E-mail Communication: The Director of Recognition distributed recognition awards to members in July in recognition of Probation, Parole & Community Supervision Week. The Director of Membership issued reoccurring membership renewal e-mails June thru August 2014. The Director of Institute Planning issued reoccurring Fall Institute e-mails to members August thru October 2014. VJJA Website Communication: The website continues to be updated regularly. Recent updates: 38th Fall Institute photos, Awards & Scholarship winners, and “Colleagues in the Spotlight”.

Stated Goal: Increase VJJA Training Attendance and skill-based, proven practices and self help training/educational offerings.

Progress: The Director of Institute Planning, Ashaki McNeil, did an extraordinary job planning and coordinating VJJA’s 38th Fall Institute. The event was held on November 5 and 6, at the Newport News Marriott at Center City and attracted 282 professionals (98 DJJ staff) and 30 Exhibitors from across the State of Virginia. See a comprehensive list of educational offerings on the Advocate cover! We look forward to Ashaki planning the 39th Fall Institute in 2015!

State Goal: Advocacy - We will inform members of current juvenile justice legislation and policy. We will provide members with opportunities to become more involved in advocacy.

Progress: In addition to the appointment of a new Director of Child Advocacy Legislation and Policy, Barbie Burfoot, I have appointed a new Director of Professional Legislation and Policy, Mark Bauer. Barbie and Mark are following public policy and advocating for changes on behalf of VJJA (including organizing a VALORS campaign!). I always want to hear our member’s concerns and what they need from us. I know ultimately I am here to serve our members. Remember, we all contribute a wealth of knowledge and experience to VJJA and together we can move from vision to reality.

Yours in Service,

Stephanie Garrison
VJJA President
Who We Are

Founded in 1966 as the Virginia Juvenile Officers Association (VJOA), the association’s name was later changed to the Virginia Juvenile Justice Association (VJJA) to reflect the diversity of its membership. That diversity is more evident today than ever, with hundreds of members representing nearly every private and public agency in the Commonwealth that works with or on behalf of system-involved juveniles. Our membership represents court services, the judiciary, DJJ administration, correctional facilities, detention centers, indigent defense, prosecution, law enforcement, group homes, behavioral health providers, educators, and more. VJJA is administered by an elected board of directors and volunteer staff and divided into six geographical district chapters.

Our Mission

... to advocate for quality services for juveniles (due process, evidence-based practices, proven models, program integrity/standards, outcome measures);

... to enhance the professionalism and skills of our members (professional development, skill building, practice improvement, resources, technical assistance, awards for excellence, recognition);

... to foster communication among our members (collaboration, networking, publications);

... to promote alternative approaches to resolving youth and family problems (diversion, risk-based graduated responses, least restrictive environment).

VJJA: What We Believe

We believe in a Juvenile Justice System that ...

♦ recognizes that adolescents are not yet who they will become and are capable of change

♦ differentiates between criminal/delinquent acts and normative adolescent acting-out

♦ uses proven models, strategies, and approaches

♦ presumes innocence, protects liberty and justice, and affords due process of law

♦ ensures community protection and holds adjudicated children accountable for their actions

♦ weighs heavily decisions concerning the deprivation of liberty and favors the least restrictive means necessary to achieve public safety

♦ is free from racial, ethnic, and gender disparities and exercises objective decision-making as a means to ensure fairness and equity

♦ relies upon data to measure progress and guide policy, practice, and programmatic changes

♦ promotes professionalism, collaboration, integrity, accountability, and transparency among key stakeholder agencies

♦ provides services relative to risk level, arranged in a continuum, and consistent with the principles of effective intervention

♦ favors fiscal responsibility and accountability to be good stewards of scarce resources

♦ does no greater harm, limits exposure to risk, and exceeds minimum standards

♦ routinely reviews policies, practices, and programs for quality, consistency with stated goals, and the ever evolving science of our field

On April 14, 2014, Governor Terry McAuliffe appointed FRAN ECKER as the Director of the Virginia Department of Criminal Justice Services. Prior to the appointment, Fran was most recently the Senior Policy Advisor for Strategic Planning for the National Criminal Justice Association, where she consulted with federal, state, and local government in the areas of criminal justice planning, evidence-based program development, and organizational management. She previously served as a Division Director at the Virginia Department of Criminal Justice Services, where she was responsible for the Corrections, Juvenile, and Victim Services Sections of the agency, as well as for Department training activities.

Fran has over 25 years of management experience in state and local government. Throughout her career in government service, and previous work as the Executive Director of a rural victim services program in the New River Valley, she has been instrumental in the design, development, and implementation of state and local criminal justice, prosecution, law enforcement, child welfare, and domestic and sexual violence grant programs. She served for several years as a clinical consultant to a local community corrections program in Central Virginia.

TINA FOLEY received the Fairfax Juvenile & Domestic Relations District Court’s 2014 Excellence Award. The award was established to honor individual employees of Fairfax JDRDC whose performance exceeds his or her job requirements and creates a positive impact on an agency-wide level. The Excellence Award winner is said to inspire positive change at an agency-wide level, shows enthusiasm for bettering the agency as a whole, encourages positive morale throughout the agency and advocates agency-wide collaboration. Tina’s employer said, “Tina excels as an intake officer by going above and beyond normal duties by taking on special projects that promote the mission and vision of the agency. Over the last year, intake has received an influx of immigration custody cases. To address this rising need, Tina looked up each incoming case over a three month period and compared these numbers to last year’s data for the same time frame. These statistics were sent to administration and presented at a leadership team meeting.”

Former Advocate Editor, Gary Conway, Honored With Retirement Party at the Virginia Horse Center
40th Anniversary: Listenbee Cites Impact of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention (JJDP) Act

In a new blog post on the U. S. Department of Justice’s Website, (www.justice.gov), OJJDP Administrator Robert L. Listenbee discusses the 40th anniversary of the signing of the Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention (JJDP) Act into law and its impact on juvenile justice. The JJDP Act established OJJDP to support local and state efforts to prevent delinquency and improve the juvenile justice system.

In his message, Listenbee details significant strides that OJJDP and its partners have made in juvenile justice reform, including:

- Violent crime arrest rates for youth are at their lowest point since at least 1980.
- Youth in residential placement declined 42 percent between 1997 and 2011.
- Youth in residential placement for status offenses decreased 64 percent.

Listenbee added that challenges still remain regarding youth in custody for nonviolent offenses and rates of confinement for minority youth. Recent scientific findings, especially regarding adolescent development and trauma, are catalyzing recent reforms and transformation of the juvenile justice system.

History: On September 7, 1974, the Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention Act was signed into law. This landmark legislation established the Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention and forever changed the way states and communities deal with youth who are at risk and youth who are involved in the juvenile justice system.

Watch Administrator Listenbee’s video message here:

http://www.ojjdp.gov/newsletter/248243/message-video.html

Advocacy: In celebration of the 40 year anniversary of the act, SparkAction, a grassroots youth advocacy group, launched the 40 for 40 video storywall series. The series interviews 40 of the nation’s most influential juvenile justice and child welfare leaders, including Shay Bilchik, Founder and Director of the Center for Juvenile Justice Reform at Georgetown University and former Administrator of OJJDP (and a former VJJA Fall Institute speaker), as they reflect on 40 years of the JJDP Act.

In his segment Mr. Bilchik speaks to both the importance of the JJDP Act in helping to shape juvenile justice policy and the need to work across systems to better meet the needs of system involved youth. Watch Mr. Bilchik’s video at:

https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=-oUNqzrbBw

The 40 for 40 video storywall series is part of the JJDPA Matters campaign, which seeks to raise awareness about and support for the reauthorization of the JJDP Act. Reauthorizing the JJDPA is important because it would strengthen the provisions of the Act and provide federal funding for states and local jurisdictions to implement it. The landmark bill was reauthorized in 2002, but expired in 2007. Since then, several bipartisan attempts have been made to reauthorize the bill, but the current political climate in Washington has kept Congress from voting on it.

We need your help: call, write, or email your congressional representatives to let them know how important protecting our kids is to you. Click here to send a letter of support for the reauthorization of the JJDPA to congress.

Together, we can better serve our kids and our communities.

Gov. Announces Drop in VA’s (Adult) Recidivism Rate

PRESS RELEASE - Governor Terry McAuliffe announced that Virginia’s re-incarceration rate has dropped to 22.8 percent, the state’s lowest rate on record.

“Long-term public safety is critical to Virginia’s future,” said Governor Terry McAuliffe. “This reduction in the recidivism rate means our children are safer, our state is more attractive to businesses, and we are returning offenders to their communities better prepared to be productive, contributing citizens.”

About ninety percent of individuals incarcerated in Virginia will one day be released back into their communities. Like most states, Virginia counts its official recidivism rate as the percentage of offenders who return to incarceration within three years of being released.

“A lower re-incarceration rate means fewer crimes, fewer victims, and less taxpayer money that must be allocated to repeat offenders,” said Virginia Department of Corrections Director Harold Clarke.

Virginia’s recidivism rate has dropped to its lowest on record. Those inmates who were released in fiscal year 2009 had a recidivism rate of 22.8 percent, as measured through 2012. The previous year’s cohort of offenders released in fiscal year 2008 and measured through 2011 had a recidivism rate of 23.4 percent, and the recidivism rate the year before that was 26.1 percent.

“We commend the Department of Corrections’ staff for their hard work, as well as the offenders who are turning their lives around and those employers who give them a second chance,” said Secretary of Public Safety and Homeland Security Brian Moran.

In Virginia, reentry preparation begins the day the VADOC receives an offender, starting with a risk and needs assessment. From offender training and education programs, work programs, resource fairs, veterans’ programs, and offender savings accounts to a partnership with the Department of Motor Vehicles to get offenders DMV-issued state identification before they leave prison, the VADOC is operating a multitude of successful reentry programs.

Richmond JDAI and Richmond Juvenile Justice Collaborative Focused on School-Based Offenses

On October 14, 2014, the Richmond Juvenile Detention Alternatives Initiative (JDAI) team and the Richmond Juvenile Justice Collaborative hosted a day-and-a-half long, cross-agency event focused on examining the prevalence of school-based referrals. Welcoming remarks were provided by Congressman Robert C. “Bobby” Scott, Chief Judge Marilyn Goss, Lead JDAI Judge Angela Roberts, and Court Services Director Kimberly Russo. Speakers for the event included the Honorable Chief Judge Steve Teske and other professionals from Clayton County (GA) JDAI and System of Care. For the past two years the Richmond Juvenile Justice Collaborative has focused on a DMC recommendation of reduction in school arrests. Seeking to reduce school-based incidents resulting in arrest and court referral was among the recommendations of a 2012 assessment of Disproportionate Minority Confinement (DMC) conducted by the Office of Juvenile Justice & Delinquency Prevention (OJJDP). The community-wide meeting, which was made possible as a result of support from the Annie E. Casey Foundation, was attended by the judiciary, prosecution, defense, court services, schools, law enforcement and other child serving agencies. An action plan is under development and protocols are being established to differentiate between incidents that could/should be handled by school administration and incidents that require court intervention.

Governor Announces Creation of Children’s Cabinet and Commonwealth Council on Childhood Success

PRESS RELEASE - Governor McAuliffe signed an Executive Order creating a cabinet solely dedicated to the education, health, safety, and welfare of Virginia’s children and youth. The newly launched Children’s Cabinet will develop and implement a policy agenda that will help better serve Virginia’s children and will also foster collaboration between state and local agencies. As a part of that effort, the Governor also signed a second Executive Order establishing the Commonwealth Council on Childhood Success. This Council will be chaired by Lt. Governor Northam and will focus on improving the health, education, and well-being of our youngest children.

“Children are the Commonwealth’s most important resource, and it is critical that we provide them with the tools and resources they need to thrive in a 21st century economy,” said Governor McAuliffe. “Both the Children’s Cabinet and the Commonwealth Council on Childhood Success will help ensure that Virginia’s children live happy and productive lives.”

Secretary of Education Anne Holton and Secretary of Health and Human Resources Bill Hazel will serve as co-chairs of the Children’s Cabinet. Lt. Governor Ralph Northam, Secretary of Public Safety Brian Moran, Secretary of Commerce and Trade Maurice Jones and the First Lady of Virginia Dorothy McAuliffe will serve as members of the Children’s Cabinet.

“It is an honor to be named Chair of the Commonwealth Council on Childhood Success,” said Lt. Governor Northam. “I am incredibly grateful that early childhood is a priority for Governor McAuliffe and his administration. The early years of a child’s life are extremely formative, and have a significant impact on their health, growth, and readiness to succeed. As policymakers we must ensure that our public investments in these services provide adequate access and high quality programs. I look forward to working with state agencies, local school districts, service providers, the business community, and advocates to ensure that every Virginia child has the opportunity to thrive and succeed.”

“The establishment of the Children’s Cabinet is a great first step towards addressing the basic needs of Virginia’s youth,” said Secretary Holton. “There are schools, neighborhoods, and communities across the Commonwealth suffering under the crushing weight of entrenched poverty, and it is our goal with the Children’s Cabinet to offer a helping hand, not a wagging finger.”

Secretary Hazel added, “While regular communication between secretariats regarding children and youth issues is important, we believe a more significant impact can be achieved by delving further into the issues impacting the health, education and success of our children.”

The Children’s Cabinet will focus on five specific priority areas:

- Eradicating the achievement gap in schools in high poverty communities.
- Increasing access to basic needs including housing, healthcare, and proper nutrition.
- Improving outcomes for youth transitioning out of Virginia’s juvenile justice, mental health and foster care systems.
- Increasing workforce opportunities for parents and for youth as they transition out of high school.
- Improving early childhood care and education.

The executive orders have received praise from leaders from across the Commonwealth:

Margaret Nimmo Crowe, Voices for Virginia’s Children:

“Governor McAuliffe’s creation of a Children’s Cabinet is exciting news for those of us working every day to improve the lives of Virginia’s children. For the first time, a Virginia governor has elevated children’s issues to the highest level of state government, showing his intention to work collaboratively to solve the most pressing challenges facing our kids. At Voices for Virginia’s Children, we believe this is an excellent step forward.”

Lisa Specter-Dunaway, CHIP of Virginia:

“We are so excited to work with such a committed governor and his administration to improve the lives of our youngest citizens, their families, and our future workforce. We all know that starting early is the key to success-changing lives, two generations at a time.”

Meg Gruber, Virginia Education Association:

“Governor Terry McAuliffe said he would focus on children and he is a man of his word. With the formation of both the Children’s Cabinet and the Commonwealth Council on Children’s Success, he is ensuring that the needs of our children in their most formative years will be addressed. I commend the Governor on these initiatives.”
Become a Certified PREA Auditor

The U.S. Department of Justice is training qualified candidates to become certified auditors of the national Prison Rape Elimination Act (PREA) standards in prisons, jails, juvenile confinement facilities, and community confinement facilities.

Background: On June 20, 2014, the Department of Justice (DOJ) issued National Standards to Prevent, Detect, and Respond to Prison Rape via the Federal Register. Recognizing that sexual abuse and harassment in confinement is a serious and widespread problem, the standards mark the first ever federal effort to protect inmates from sexual abuse in all forms of confinement facilities at the federal, state, and local levels.

Among the most significant provisions of the standards is the establishment of the first nationwide audit of correctional facilities. Every facility in the United States that seeks to be compliant with the federal PREA standards must be audited by a Department of Justice (DOJ) certified PREA auditor on those standards at least once every three years, beginning August 20, 2013.

Auditor Certification Process: Auditor candidates must complete a 40-hour training conducted by the DOJ and the PREA Resource Center (PRC), pass an examination, and clear a background check before they are certified to begin auditing. The DOJ has been certifying auditors since August 2013. Certified auditors do not work for the DOJ, but are certified as qualified by the DOJ to conduct PREA audits as independent contractors for corrections agencies seeking to demonstrate compliance.

Auditor Qualifications: The DOJ has set qualifications for individuals interested in training to become certified as a PREA auditor. Those qualifications can be found in detail at http://www.prearesourcemand.com/audit/auditor-qualifications-and-application.

The most significant qualification is auditing, monitoring, investigative, or quality assurance experience in a correctional setting.

The Application Process: Qualified candidates are encouraged to apply. To find out more about this opportunity, determine if you meet the criteria of a qualified applicant, and find the link to the application portal, visit this link http://www.appa-net.org/eweb/docs/APPA/announce/Auditor-Training-Outreach.pdf.

Core Principles for Reducing Recidivism, Improving Outcomes for Youth in JJ System

The National Reentry Resource Center, a project of the Council of State Governments (CSG) Justice Center, has released two publications to help state and local governments reduce recidivism and improve outcomes for youth in juvenile justice settings. The publications are produced with the support of OJJDP and the John D. and Catherine T. MacArthur Foundation. “Measuring and Using Juvenile Recidivism Data to Inform Policy, Practice, and Resource Allocation” highlights the findings of a survey of juvenile correctional agencies in all 50 states, providing 5 recommendations for state and local policymakers to improve their measurement, analysis, collection, reporting, and use of recidivism data on system-involved youth. “Core Principles for Reducing Recidivism and Improving Other Outcomes for Youth in the Juvenile Justice System” offers policy and practice recommendations to support successful reentry for system-involved youth and help these youth successfully transition to a crime-free, productive adulthood. The Council of State Governments Justice Center is a national nonprofit organization that serves policymakers at the local, state, and federal levels from all branches of government. Staff provides practical, nonpartisan advice and evidence-based, consensus-driven strategies to increase public safety and strengthen communities. New Reports Available from NCCD’s Series on Youth Deincarceration

The National Council on Crime & Delinquency (NCCD) has released additional reports in their eight-part series regarding the dramatic reduction of youth incarceration rates in most US states over the past 10 years. The first two reports, which were highlighted by the VJJA Advocate in the April 2014 issue, summarized stakeholder views on reducing youth incarceration and identify ways to budget for reform. NCCD studied the deincarceration trend through interviews with key stakeholders, listening sessions in five states, a national convening of juvenile justice leaders, and the compilation and analysis of county-level data from five jurisdictions. Despite a 41-percent drop in the rate of youth in confinement between 2001 and 2011, youth of color continue to be held in formal supervision and state facilities at much higher rates than white youth. During the month of June, NCCD released, “Supervision Strategies for Justice-Involved Youth.” This policy brief describes strategies to improve supervision of low- and moderate-risk youth on probation, parole, or under community supervision to keep them out of the juvenile justice system. Key strategies explored include reducing supervision of youth who do not need it, avoiding unnecessary revocations, and engaging youth with families and service providers. NCCD also released “Engaging Juvenile Justice System Involved Families.” Families of justice-system involved youth have traditionally been excluded from decisions regarding their children and often are assumed to be the cause of their children’s activity. This policy brief acknowledges that families are a key component to supervision strategies and improved outcomes for their youth. Watch for the addition of a ninth piece but in the meantime, download the initial eight NCCD reports in the series here: http://nccdglobal.org/what-we-do/our-focus-areas/juvenile-justice/youth-deincarceration

A Focus on Education: Helping You Help Your Child

This self-help manual, produced by JustChildren, describes the legal obligation of school systems across a range of areas, as well as tips on effective advocacy strategies. The manual is now in its sixth edition. The manual is written for parents and includes tips for successful self-advocacy, as well as plain language guidance on complicated areas of education law such as special education, enrollment, student discipline, access to ESL services, and more. Though written for parents, the publication is also for juvenile justice staff seeking to help young people experience educational success. National Center for Juvenile Justice Releases Juvenile Court Statistics 2011

The National Center for Juvenile Justice has released "Juvenile Court Statistics 2011." The Briefing Book is a comprehensive online resource describing various topics related to delinquency and the juvenile justice system, including the latest information on juveniles living in poverty, teen birth rates, juvenile victims of violent crime, trends in juvenile arrest rates, and youth in residential placement facilities. The Briefing Book is also a repository for more detailed presentations of juvenile court data than are found in the annual Juvenile Court Statistics report. The report describes trends in delinquency cases processed between 1985 and 2011 and status offense cases handled between 1995 and 2011. Data include case rates, juvenile demographics, and offenses charged. In 2011, courts handled an estimated 1.2 million cases (down 34 percent from the peak in 1997). Thirty one percent of cases involved females, and 53 percent involved youth younger than 16. Resources: The report draws on data from the OJJDP-sponsored National Juvenile Court Data Archive. See OJJDP’s Statistical Briefing Book for additional information on juvenile court case processing. http://ojjdp.gov/ojstatbb/njcdaspdf/jcs2011.pdf

OJJDP Bulletin Provides Overview of Juveniles in Residential Placement

OJJDP has released “Juveniles in Residential Placement, 2011.” The bulletin presents information from the 2011 Census of Juveniles in Residential Placement, conducted by the U.S. Census Bureau and sponsored by OJJDP. Findings from this biennial survey of public and private juvenile residential facilities offer a detailed picture of the young people in residential placement in the United States. The data indicate that while the population of juvenile offenders in residential placement has declined 42 percent since 1997, the residential placement rate for black youth was more than 4.5 times the rate for white youth, and the rate for Hispanic youth was 1.8 times the rate for white youth. Resources: See other publications in OJJDP’s Juvenile Offenders and Victims: National Report Series. http://www.ojjdp.gov/pubs/246826.pdf (August 2014)

Comprehensive School Safety Initiative Report, National Institute of Justice (NIJ)

The Comprehensive School Safety Initiative Report, which was developed by the National Institute of Justice (NIJ) under the Consolidated Appropriations Act, 2014, is a research-focused, collaborative effort to increase school safety nationwide by identifying the most effective and sustainable school safety interventions and programs. In FY 2014, NIJ plans to examine the issues of school safety within three broad areas: the history of school safety programs nationwide; independent research and evaluation; and identification of the effects of various school safety interventions. The ultimate goal is to develop a comprehensive model that includes evidence-based components. Six associated activities are planned in pursuit of this goal. https://ncjrs.gov/pdffiles1/nij/247757.pdf (May 2014)

Changing Lives: Prevention and Intervention to Reduce Serious Offending

This final bulletin of the series of six bulletins on the findings from the National Institute of Justice Study Group on the Transitions From Juvenile Delinquency and Adult Crime (the “Study Group”) reviews effective prevention and intervention programs intended to reduce serious offending in early adulthood. Five conclusions are drawn about the literature reviewed. First, there is a paucity of high-quality evaluations of programs that have measured the impact on offending in early adulthood. Second, there are some promising signs that early prevention programs can produce lasting effects on offending. Third, there are some promising signs that family-based interventions for adjudicated delinquents that operate outside the juvenile justice system can reduce offending in early adulthood. Fourth, evidence on intervention modalities used with both juvenile and adult offenders indicates their effects are substantially similar. Fifth, there are a number of evidence-based programs for juvenile and young adult offenders that can produce monetary benefits that exceed costs. The focus of the literature review is on the highest quality research studies. https://www.ncjrs.gov NCJ 243993 (August 2014)
